4 of 5 review helpful An identification guide for cartoon cetaceans By KPDR87 As with any guide published so long ago before the mid 2000s it is now sorely outdated it doesn't include newly described species such as Omura's whale or Perrin's beaked whale among others It includes sections on just about every species of cetacean then known including information on appearance behavior and where to find particular species This Gem explores and explains the world of whales and dolphins Over 50 species of whale dolphin and porpoise are illustrated with the author's own photographs Aspects covered include evolution identification biology zoological categorization feeding habits and predators The book answers commonly asked questions such as how intelligent are dolphins and should whales be kept in captivity and discusses the sensitive subject of whale conservation About the Author Mark Carwardine is a zoologist writer photographer consultant and broadcaster with a special interest in marine wildlife He has written more than 40 books and has hosted natural history programs on BBC Radio Martin Camm is a gifted natural
